3 fantastic ideas!

hello, readers..... frank sidebottom here..! now...have you ever wondered what to do with your school books during the summer holidays?i know i do.!! well, here are 3 fantastic ideas.!! of things you can make with them so don't dare say you're bored this summer....or else!....o.k.?

1. construct a full size galleon and set sail on the 7 seas.

2. put them on a shelf (in order?)

or 3... make your own little frank.

actually...you'd better use newspapers for this as i might get in big trouble if you use your school books.

first: rip up loads of paper to about the size of stamps.

2: go and buy a balloon from the shops and some wallpaper glue.

4: pop the balloon, then knock a nail into a stick inside.

5: cut a nose and ears out of card and stick on with a couple more layers.

6: paint the face and make a body out of a big piece of card and there's 'little frank'.

3: stick the paper all over the balloon, it is best if you do a few layers so it will be very strong when it's dry.

and last: puppets must be told off a very very lot.

HEAD CASE!

I am a 41 year-old headmaster and an avid reader of 'Oink!'. I particularly admire BANX, and have a strong empathy with Mr. Bignose. I also read 'The Independent' and 'The Times Educational Supplement', but they don't make me laugh.

T.E. Haxell, Suffolk.

Very nice letter, 10 out of 10 for handwriting, 10 out of 10 for spelling, 0 out of 10 for honesty (nobody that nice could really be a headmaster, could they?).

-Uncle Pigg.

Next time teachers tell you off for reading 'Oink!' in class, tell 'em you're studying to be an intellectual, like pig-pal Sean Connor who is working on 'Oink!' as part of an 'Ideas in Society' course for his B.A. in Humanities at Bristol Polytechnic!

-Uncle Pigg, B.A./Butcher 'Ater).

P.S. Give the pen back to the cartoonist, immediately!

ART LESSON

Dear Uncle Pigg - My age is 11. I know I'm young, but I'm a good drawer. Please give me a job as a cartoonist. Here's some of my work.

-Adam White, Sedgley.

Dear Adam - Your drawings are great, but you'll have to finish school before you can apply for a job with me. As you're such a good drawer, I know you won't mind me asking you to shut up for a while.

-Uncle Pigg.

P.S. Give the pen back to the cartoonist, immediately!

Turns any noise into music.

With a Casio Sampling keyboard making noise into music couldn't be simpler. Or more fun. Just record any sound from any noise using the built-in mike.

It could be you or the budgie

singing, the cat miaowing or the kettle whistling.

Then play back the noise you sampled as music.

Change pitch and tempo as you go up and down the scale.

Loop the sampled sound for a longer effect, making it St-st-stutter,

or even add vibrato.

And that, musically, is just

the beginning.

Because, on the Casio SK-1 you can add any of eight sounds already programmed into the machine to your sampled original, and beef it up with any one of eleven backing rhythms.

So you can get the cat or the kettle

doing a disco number, laidback

reggae or soulful blues.

The new SK-5 is

even smarter.

It can record four different "Samples" which

you can tap into music

using its four Sample Pads.

And with the eight sounds

already programmed, that gives you twelve sounds to play with.

It also has four built-in rhythm pads, for any extra beats, bangs and booms as you play.

The Casio SK-1 costs around £99 (RRP) the new SK-5 a mere £109 (RRP). Get your hands on a Casio Sampler at any one of the stores listed below.

You're guaranteed

a lot of fun.
